Mike leads the Tax Department at KPMG. He is a member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales and the UK's Chartered Institute of Taxation. He has more than 25 years of experience gained predominantly at international audit and tax advisory firms (mainly in the UK) and over the past 21 years has focused on international taxation. In 2001, he joined the Hungarian practice of the firm and prior to that he worked as a tax partner at KPMG's Kiev practice for two and a half years. Mike's most significant client activities include due diligence projects, the creation and implementation of international structures and the management of advisory and personal tax compliance services.

A certified economist and a registered tax advisor, Gergely has been working in KPMG's Tax Department since 2000 and has been involved in the field of tax advisory services since 1997. He specializes in solving taxation problems related to the financial sector. In addition, he also has significant experience in investment structuring, international financing structures, international taxation, advising on planning and implementing tax effective remuneration schemes, planning of cross-border transactions and in handling corporate restructurings, acquisitions and reorganizations. He has also taken part in numerous cross-border projects within KPMG's international network.

Csaba is an economist, a Hungarian Registered Auditor and a certified Hungarian Tax Expert (registered by the Ministry of Finance). He started his career at the Finance Ministry in 1986, where he worked in various departments and positions, finally as Permanent State Secretary until 1999. In November 1999, he joined the Central Clearing House as CFO. In the next two years he worked for ABN Amro Bank and later for K&H Bank, first as CFO, later as supervisor of the integration of the two banks. In 2002, he became Minister of Finance, and Chairman of the Economic Cabinet of the Government. He has gained broad experience in taxation issues, corporate management and law-making as well as in macro-economic issues. Csaba joined KPMG in 2004 and since then has been responsible for transfer pricing, corporation tax and taxation of financial sector clients.

A lawyer and Belgian Tax Expert certified by the Belgian Association of Tax Consultants (Belgische Associatie voor Belastingconsulenten – BAB). Philippe joined KPMG in 2003 to lead the Indirect Taxes, Customs and International Trade Group. He started his career in Belgium in 1992 with an international consulting firm, focusing on VAT, customs and international trade. For four years, Philippe had worldwide responsibilities in the field of business development, negotiations with authorities, indirect tax planning and implementation of new tax systems. He has broad experience in EU indirect tax matters, and is now the deputy chairman of KPMG's global indirect tax practice.

A tax advisor, registered by the Ministry of Finance and an economist, Gábor has been leading the Mergers and Acquisitions Group of KPMG's tax department since 2003. He joined KPMG in 2000 and has been involved in the field of tax advisory services since 1999. Apart from his broad experience regarding mergers and acquisitions, he specializes in taxation problems in the real estate and media sectors. In addition, he also has significant experience relating to the retail and industrial sectors. He is member of the KPMG's international Real Estate and M&A networks.
